DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-32 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Claims 1-16 recite, inter alia, a method for determining the steady state terminal voltage of a battery by calculating a charge resistance at a current charge current, temperature, state of charge of the battery based on equivalent charge resistance; calculating a no load voltage based on current charge current, temperature, state of charge of the battery based on effective no load charge voltage data; and calculating the steady state battery terminal voltage at current charge current, temperature, state of charge of the battery based on the calculated equivalent charge resistance and no load voltage. The art of record does not teach, disclose or suggest the above limitations, nor would it be obvious to modify the art of record so as to include the above limitations.
3. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Claims 17-32 recite, inter alia, a method for determining the steady state terminal voltage of a battery by calculating a charge resistance at a current charge current, temperature, depth of discharge of the battery based on equivalent charge resistance; calculating a no load voltage based on current charge current, temperature, depth of discharge of the battery based on effective no load charge voltage data; and calculating the steady state battery terminal voltage at current charge current, temperature, depth of discharge of the battery based on the calculated equivalent charge resistance and no load voltage. art of record does not teach, disclose or suggest the above limitations, nor would it be obvious to modify the art of record so as to include the above limitations.
